The CITADEL Stars aren't always found in the sky

Standing guard over the city is the Halifax Citadel National Historic Site. Constructed between 1828 and 1856, the Citadel is a living history museum sitting in the middle of Halifax where you'll discover the 78th Highland Regiment still fires the noonday gun (yes, a real cannon). Guided tours with costumed animators are available for exploring musket galleries, earthen ramparts, garrison cells, guard rooms and much more.

The 78th HIGHLANDERS

Upon your arrival, you'll be greeted in true Nova Scotian style by our 78th Nova Scotian Highland Regiment. This living history program includes maneuvers by infantry detachments dressed in 19th century uniforms, concerts by the pipes and drums of the 78th playing tunes from the mid-Victorian period, Soldier for a day, a British schoolroom and much more.

The PUBLIC GARDENS A formal Victorian centrepiece

One of the finest original formal Victorian Public Gardens in North America, this beautiful centerpiece of the city welcomes all who enter. Right next door to the wonderful shops of Spring Garden Road, the Public Gardens features 17 acres of rare flowers, sparkling fountains, historic statuary, and free concerts from the picturesque red-roofed gazebo.

LUNENBURG A UNESCO World Heritage site

Established in 1753, Lunenburg, a UNESCO World Heritage site and Canadian National Historic District offers a wealth of unique architecture such as the "Lunenburg bump". Home to the Bluenose schooner, Lunenburg offers authentic seafood, a working waterfront and much more!
